

Is Hospice the Right Choice for your Loved One?

Abode Hospice understands it is important to thoroughly research the many different hospices in your community before choosing one. Hospices are not all the same, and no one should have to settle for one that is not the best fit for you or your family. Abode Hospice is dedicated to educating patients, families, and the community about end-of-life care. This makes us different from other hospices.

Even if you don't choose us, we will explain the details and benefits of hospice care and provide any additional information needed so the right decision can be made with confidence. For many people, the decision to receive hospice care is made following the diagnosis of a life-limiting illness. Even so, some families still question this decision.

Please check the box next to all that apply. Have you or a loved one...

- Fallen several times in the past 6 months?
- Experienced some weight loss, causing clothes to fall loosely?
- Started spending most of the day in a chair or bed?
- Noticed forgetfulness, and/or misplacing frequently used items, such as eyeglasses, more regularly?
- Made more frequent visits to the doctor?
- Been to the emergency room, or hospitalized more than twice in the past six months?
- Noticed a shortness of breath, even while resting?
- Started taking medication to lessen pain?

If you've checked any of these boxes, please contact us. We are available to discuss care options with you.
